Don,

The main comment I have to make about PM 1083 concerns the term "oxygen absorption." This term relates to the desired effect, but in actual practice only air was used as a treating atmosphere. Does this pose any problem in the patent application description of the process or is it really only a minor point and nothing to worry about? I have made several other small changes throughout the body of the application that deal with this and other topics.

John Dean

RECEIVED
PHILIP MORRIS, INC.
LAW DEPT.-PATENT SECTION
NOV - 5 1982
NOTED

2022900399

Source: https://www.industrydocuments.ucsf.edu/docs/myhj0000